RE: DENZEL MORGAN

DOB: 05/02/1990

SBI#: 000873171C

Ordering Provider: cmsada6

The patient is a 25-year-old male who presents one month after an injury. He states that he had a twisting injury to the left ankle. Significant pain is associated with weightbearing. He states that he has swelling over the lateral aspect of his foot.

Physical examination reveals a large amount of swelling noted over the ATFL laterally. Minimal soreness is also noted medially. He also has tenderness over the metatarsophalangeal joint dorsally as well as plantar.

Sensation is grossly intact.

X-ray examination of the left ankle today reveals there to be no fracture or dislocation of the ankle itself. There is a sesamoid fracture seen on the lateral.

IMPRESSION:

Left ankle sprain with a sesamoid fracture.

PLAN:

The patient should be allowed partial weightbearing to the left lower extremity. Crutch mobilization should be tried for one month.

At this time, the patient is allowed full range of motion. He should elevate, ice and rest as much as possible.

The patient should continue to use the crutch for partial weightbearing for one month. He can then be transitioned to regular full weightbearing at that time. Physical therapy should be initiated at that time. He does not require follow up.

Examination: FCT 0486 - CT-MAXILOFACIAL WO CONTRAST

Date: Sep 6 2015

RESULT:

CT Maxillofacial Bones Without Contrast

HISTORY:

Assault.

COMMENTS:

Prior exams: None available.

Technique: Direct axial images of the orbits/maxillofacial area were obtained with coronal reformations. No intravenous contrast was used.

Left periorbital soft tissue swelling is seen.

Mildly depressed left nasal bone fracture is seen. Dehiscence versus old fracture of the right medial orbital wall is seen.

The mandible, pterygoid plates, maxillary sinus walls, and zygomatic arches are intact.

The optic globes and retrobulbar soft tissues are normal.

There is mild mucosal thickening of the right maxillary sinus. The mastoid air cells are well pneumatized.

IMPRESSION:

Left periorbital soft tissue swelling. Mildly depressed left nasal bone fracture. Dehiscence versus fracture of the right medial orbital wall. A preliminary report was provided by the on-call radiologist Dr. Fiorito on 9/6/2015 at 12:51 a.m.
